BY W. H. HOLMES

VOLUME IV

SECTION II First Ascent of the Mountain of the Holy Cross, 1873, followed by a number of letters and clippings revealing the awakening interest in the mountain by the people of Denver 56 years later.

It appears that the photograph of the Mountain of the Holy Cross made by Mr. Jackson in 1873 is the best representation of the mountain ever taken. The melting of the snows had reached the particular point when the cross is revealed in great perfection, and the figure of the woman with upraised hands has never been so clearly defined so far as shown by photographs.
